Pastoral Reflection

Seeds of Friendship, Harvest of Hope (Part 1)

Some of the most significant moments in mission do not always begin with a sermon or a programme. They begin with something much simpler — a conversation, a shared meal, a song, and perhaps, a friendship.

In 2009, I joined BPMC's mission trip to XC to conduct an English Summer Camp. It was a journey that would profoundly shape my understanding of God's heart for the nations. As I stepped into a world so different from Singapore, God opened my eyes to the realities for a group of 13-year-olds in a vastly different environment. More importantly, He taught me how to love them with the love of Christ.

There were a few students whose progress I followed closely. One of them is P. P had always had a keen interest in the English language. Today, he is a well-sought-after English Teacher.

A month ago, P invited me to his wedding. What a great honor it was to celebrate a major milestone with him.

Looking back, we had no grand strategies for the English Summer Camp. But the friendship became the bridge through which God's love could be quietly demonstrated. While many of them may not yet know Christ personally, I believe that every seed of kindness and every word of encouragement that were sown have not been wasted. God is able to use every moment for His eternal purposes.

My prayer is that God will draw them into a relationship with Jesus Christ, transform their hearts with His grace and truth, and help them understand that their current achievements are part of God's greater calling for their lives. May they use their gifts, talents, and opportunities to bless others; stand for what is right and reflect the character of Christ.

This journey is a reminder that ministry is often measured not by immediate outcomes but by faithful presence over many years. We may never fully see how God is weaving together every conversation, every act of kindness, and every prayer offered. Yet we trust that He is always at work, accomplishing far more than we can imagine.

As Scripture reminds us, "Let us not grow weary of doing good, for at the proper time we will reap a harvest if we do not give up" (Galatians 6:9).

The story is not yet finished. My prayer is that these precious friends will one day know the fullness of God's saving grace and discover His wonderful purpose for their lives.

May God continue to fan into flame BPMC's fire for missions beyond Singapore.
